The University
HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

THE LANDS OF THE ABOVE-NAMED ASSOCIATION are situated in San Francisco and are eligibly and most desirably located, adjoining the grounds purchased by the Presbyterian University Society, on which College buildings are to be at once erected. The site is less than thirty minutes ride from Montgomery street; lying just west or back of the lands of the South San Francisco Homestead and Railroad Association and the Bay View Park, almost within a stone's throw of ST. MARY'S COLLEGE.

The tract will require little or no grading, there being scarcely a single lot on which it would not be easy to build without any change of grade. It commands a

Beautiful View of the Bay,

And its opposite shore, and has a soil of extreme richness. So great are the natural attractions of the spot that very many of the wealthy citizens of San Francisco have already purchased whole blocks in the same tract, and design building residences thereon.

The Rev. E. Thomas, D. D.,

Is President of the Association; Lester L. Robinson, formerly Vice President of the Sacramento Railroad Company, is the Treasurer, and Thomas B. Lewis, formerly of Portland, Secretary.

Four lots, 50x120 feet each, constitute a share, costing $315—paid in monthly instalments of $10 each, after the first payment of $20 has been made.

Maps and books giving full information of the workings of the Association can be obtained at the store of J. L. PARRISH & CO.

It is an easy and a cheap way for young men to procure property which will in a few years make them independent.

The above liberal offer is made to the traveling public to enable the subscriber to pay his debts, and not with any reference to speculation, as all the property is valued at much less than its cost, (the Steamer alone having cost $11,000), and the price for carrying passengers to Astoria being much less than the usual fare.

PIONEER WASHER.
JAMES BRUSIE,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It is easily worked by one person.

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to all household ecpnomists and families and washing men and washing women.

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

The undersigned is now in the city of Portland, where he can be seen at Mr. O. Kilbourn's Store, corner of Front and Yamhill Sts., East side, Portland, and is prepared to furnish the Machine to purchasers and also to sell and dispose of County Rights for the sale of the same.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—No Eastern news to-day.

Aaron Roland, administrator of the estate of Peter Collins, deceased, has commenced suit against the New Idra Mining Company and William Neely Thompson, to recover possession of one-tenth of the San Carlos quick silver mines in Fresno county, which belonged to and was held by Peter Collins during his life time.

Capt. J. S. Flitz, an old and esteemed citizen, formerly of the house of Flitz & Ralston, died at his residence yesterday morning, and was buried from Calvary Church this afternoon. He was aged 50 years, and was a native of Pennsylvania.

Attachment suits were commenced yesterday afternoon against Ash & Hurley, dealers in gentlemen's furnishing goods, as follows: Henry W. Stern, et al, $2,530; Peter Thompson, et al, 1,100; Titus Tobin, et al, 2,300.

Hannah Burkhart has applied to Gov. Low for the pardon of Frederick Burkhart, who was sentenced by Judge Cowles in January last, for grand larceny.

The Savage Mining Company have declared a dividend of $200 per share, aggregating $150,000, payable on and after to-morrow. The company carry over a surplus of from $60,000 to $100,000. The stock sold in board last evening at $4,000. One of the highest quotations yet reached.

The wires continue silent and hence we have no later gold quotations. Legal tenders are quoted weak at 70½ buying, and 74 selling.

Of the deposits at the mint for the past month a large per centage, we understand, consisted of refined gold from the San Francisco refinery.

The demand for exchange and bullion for Monday's steamer has hardly opened as yet. The quotations for to-day are as follows: Coin drafts on Atlantic cities, 2@2½ per cent; currency drafts, 23 per cent, premium on gold; telegraphic transfers, 2½ per cent.; exchange, 48¾ for 60 day bankers's bills on London, and 5 francs for 30 day bills on Paris. Gold bars in good demand at 90@; silver bars active at 1@2 per cent. premium, according to fineness and quantity.

The Markets.

Flour—Market quiet at reduced quotations. City brands sell as follows: Superfine half sacks $5 25@5 50; qr sacks $5 50@5 75, extra half sacks $6 25@6 50, qr sacks $6 50@6 75.

Oats—Market still inactive at $1 05@1 15 @ 100lbs.

FROM THE NORTH.

VICTORIA, June 5.—An announcement appears in this morning's paper that Hon. Mr. Birch, Colonial Secretary of British Columbia, will return to England by the next steamer. He will be succeeded by the Hon. Mr. Young.

An attempt was made on Monday night in this city to assassinate a gentleman on his way home. Fortunately the point of the knife of the assassin struck the buckle of the intended victim's suspenders and broke the force, thus saving his life.

The brig Amethyst is loading with coal at Bellingham Bay, for San Francisco. The brig Commodore was off the mouth of Port Townsend harbor on Monday evening bound for San Francisco with lumber.

Eastern Trades' Union.

The New York Herald says: Trades' unions of late are becoming exceedingly complicated. Formerly a mechanic belonging to a trade society paid his initiation fee on entering, and a small monthly stipend for its support, and that was all. Now it is different. There is first the trades' union proper; then the State union, a body composed of delegates from the several unions within the State, and then the national union, which is composed of all the delegates from all the unions in the nation. This only applies to those belonging to one calling or trade. Then again comes the working men's assemblies, a plant of very recent growth, and one which may be found flourishing in all large cities. It is formed of representatives from a number of trades' unions. The State trades' assembly is made up of delegates from the local assemblies in the cities of that particular State, and the whole is topped off with what is known as the labor congress. The support of these institutions, with all the expenses of the running of the machinery, the transportation and the keep of delegates during the annual sessions of conventions, and the payment of the salaried officers, is borne by the local trades' unions, and the treasuries of these bodies is supplied by direct taxation upon the working men.

The ramifications of these trades unions extend throughout every State in the Union. Many of them are in the possession of ample treasuries; and it is an understood thing, that whenever any great or pressing emergency arises, each particular trade forming a portion of the great whole will contribute its share toward the attainment of any object or the prevention of what may be deemed the encroachment of the bosses. It was by this system of State and National union that the iron workers were enabled to successfully contend with the iron masters in the early part of last year; and it was owing to the connection existing between the mechanics engaged in ship building in this and adjacent seaport towns, by means of their trades unions that the journeymen were able to disregard the threats of their employers, when, in order to break up the workingmen's combination, they threatened to send their work, for the time being, to Boston, Portland or any other of the sea-board cities. But the men in those cities were apprised of the action of the employers by means of their trades unions, and while their employers in this city were calculating upon having their work performed in such and such ports, the journeymen in those cities were actually holding meetings and pledging their men not to work on any ship or vessel which came from New York, and upon which the mechanics there had struck. Thus, in a very short space of time, one of the most important interests of the country was brought to a dead lock, and the shipbuilding and repairing of this city received a blow from which it has not yet recovered.

Some idea may be formed of the influence which these bodies exert over the journeymen and how willingly the men contribute to their support, from the following facts: According to the report of the President of the Iron Molders' Union, there were at the beginning of the year 11,948 persons working at molding, all of whom were influenced by the Molders' National Union. The amount of money paid in for the support of that body for the year ending December, 1866, was $12,331 63. The number of new Unions formed and old ones re-organ zed numbered thirty-five. This money, or the greater portion of it, has been paid out in running the machine, and is consumed in the payment of the officers' salaries; keeping men on strikes; defraying the expenses of "nimmil secret police force," which the President states "has been of great service to him," and a sum has been spent in an effort to secure the passage of a bill in the New York Legislature to prevent the convict labor of Sing Sing from being used to the disadvantage of the Union." From the same source it is ascertained that the amount of money expended in lockouts and strikes for the six years ending January 1, 1866, including local and international expenses, foots up the sum of $1,151,582 26, and for this expenditure it is contended the remuneration of the journeymen has been doubled in that space of time. Branches of this body are established in this city; their meetings are private, and few outside of the organization are aware of the movements contemplated by the Union until the blow is struck.

This is the model from which other mechanics form their ideas in reference to the establishment of trade central bodies. As with the formation of local unions, so with the national societies. Nearly every occupation in which the number of men composing it assumes anything like respectable proportions, has its local and national unions. Whether drawing inspiration from the success which was in one particular at least attained by the nearly defunct Roman Brotherhood, several trades have adopted the system of sending out an organizer, generally a President of a local body, or some other high functionary belonging to a craft, who is usually a glib, wordy talker. This individual receives a salary for his services, and has all his traveling expenses paid.

A QUEER HEARSE.—We find the following in a letter from Marseilles:

We saw, passing through the streets, several hearses of singular construction, combining with truly French economy, accommodations for a small family of mourners and for the body which they were bearing to the grave,—the front having the body and seats of a cab, joined to a long carriage for the body. In one of those was a priest reading his breviary; in another, a man and children were seated, accompanying the body.

PLINT DISTRICT.

On Friday last, in company with a few friends, we paid Flint District a visit, the first since we have been in the camp—now nearly a year. To our great surprise, we found the whole face of the country clothed in green—a great relief after viewing the sterile rocky appearance around Silver, and after passing over the deep snow upon the summit of the mountain. We were agreeably disappointed with all we saw at Flint, and predict for that section of the country a glorious, happy and prosperous future. The snow is all gone from the little valleys and gulches in Flint, and it can only be seen upon the distant hills and mountains surrounding. From our examination, we should imagine that gardening could there be followed with some success.

The whole country is checkered with quartz ledges and mining is going on extensively. We will give our impressions of certain ledges which we visited, and such information as we obtained.

RISING STAR.

Of this ledge we have had occasion to speak frequently before. Through the kindness of Mr. Waters, we were permitted to give the mine a personal inspection. This ledge is from seven to fourteen feet wide, and well defined. Its general course is marked on the surface by boulders, by which it can easily be traced. Considerable work has been done and a large quantity of rock is even now awaiting the crushing operation. The first thing that struck us forcibly about this ledge, was the great amount of rich looking ore it contained, and the ease and facility with which it was to be obtained. In this particular it is unlike any other ledge now known to us. It is our impression, and that of every citizen of Flint, that the Rising Star is one of the foremost ledges in the county.

LEVIATHAN.

The tunnel upon this mine is still being run. In company with Mr. Warnkie we went into this tunnel, now extending ninety feet into the mountain. The work is still progressing, and from six to eight hands are constantly employed. They are drifting to the left, and sinking a shaft to the right. Upon the left in this tunnel we saw as rich silver ore as we ever saw anywhere in the country, streaked with ruby silver. Some forty to sixty tons rock have already been taken out, and promises more than a fair yield of bullion.

Mr. Leibenan has some connection with the work upon this mine.

SHERMAN.

The established reputation of this ledge leaves us little to say in its praise. In addition to the shafts and other work upon this mine, Mr. Swarts and other owners are running a tunnel to strike the ledge from the great north, and although they have met with great obstacles and have to expend great labor and means, they, nothing daunted, are moving ahead. Some of the rock from the Jackson ledge is assorted and sacked, and looks splendidly.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR.

If there is anything in a name to indicate wealth, we should say that here it certainly must be found. Our impression is that the owners of this ledge will be amply repaid for all their labor. There is a great similarity in nearly all the rock taken from the various ledges in Flint, and we fully believe that it will all prove to be paying quartz.

OTHER LEDGES.

Of the Eagle Bird, Rochester, General Grant, Virginia City, and many others which we saw, suffice it to say, that in our opinion they are all good, and will prove of great value to their owners. We were sorry that time did not permit us to visit the Forest; we however, learned that a large force was constantly employed, and the owners were awaiting impatiently for the arrival of their mills from San Francisco, to commence crushing.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 8, 1867.

REPUBLICAN UNION WARD MEETINGS.

The Republican Union voters of the city of Portland are requested to meet in their respective Wards on the evening of Monday, the 10th inst., at 7 o'clock, to put in nomination candidates for the City Council, to be supported at the coming election. No person will be allowed to vote except in his own Ward, and none will be permitted to vote who have not heretofore supported the nominees of the Union party.

The number of Councilmen to be chosen in the several Wards is as follows: First Ward, one; Second Ward, two. Third Ward, three.

The places of meeting will be: First Ward, Willamette Theatre, on Stark street; Second Ward, Court House Hall; Third Ward, Hayden's building, corner of Third and Market streets.

Washington Territory Election.

The following are the returns received up to last night. The figures indicate the majorities:

Counties.	Flanders.	Clark.
Island		3
Whatcom		17
Snohoomish	8
King	26
Pierce		51
Thurston	29
Mason		3
Lewis		23
Clarke	57
Skamania		15
Walla Walla		145
Chehalem	18
Jefferson	60
Kitsap	50
Chehalis	50
Total	279	256

Pacific and Wahkiakum counties west of the mountains are to be heard from, and east of the mountains, Klickitat, Yakima and Stevens. The two former are expected to give Flanders about 80 majority; the result in the three last named can hardly be conjectured. The official count can alone settle the result.

Trade With Montana

Recent accounts from Montana give assurance of the great richness of the mines and the success attending mining operations. It is expected that from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 will be produced the present year. From the local papers we learn that mining operations of all kinds are being prosecuted with unusual vigor, and evidences of activity and prosperity are very generally apparent.

Montana is now supplied mainly from her own soil with the staple products of agriculture. The trade that was formerly carried on with other places in these commodities is therefore at an end, but Montana is still a good business customer, and St. Louis and Chicago have been and are still striving for her trade. Last year St. Louis reaped a golden harvest from this traffic. The prospects for the present year are not so good, and the shipments by the river have fallen far below those of last spring.

We are confident that if the merchants and traders of Montana would turn their attention in this direction they would soon convince themselves that they can trade with the Pacific coast with better advantage to themselves than they can trade with St. Louis. It is certain that they can receive supplies from this quarter much more expeditiously than from the opposite side; and with the facilities for transportation which are now offered, it is equally certain that for cheapness as well as for expedition, this route can successfully compete with the Missouri river. The merchants of Montana can easily satisfy themselves about these matters. There are natural advantages in our favor in this competition, and the time will come when they will be recognized.

We often hear about an "epidemic of crime." Robberies, murders and suicides are found, at certain periods, to happen with astonishing frequency and uniformity. All sorts of theories have been advanced to explain these phenomena, and metaphysicians have gone very deep into the inquiry, endeavoring to adduce reasons to account for their occurrence. The idea once prevailed that such events were merely fortuitous or accidental; but a study of the subject dispelled this belief from the minds of many, and led them to look upon these occurrences, happening with such singular uniformity, as the result of some explainable cause. Some therefore have endeavored to account for these events in the way above alluded to, while others have pursued a different and perhaps a more satisfactory method. It has been demonstrated in France by a course of elaborate and carefully prepared statistics that the prevalence of crime bears a proportion to the price and supply of food. When means of subsistence are abundant, crime is comparatively rare; an advance of ten francs on a bushel of wheat increases crime to a frightful extent. Given, the price of food, and the statistics show that robberies, murders, suicides and other crimes will happen in determinate ratios. The difficulty of procuring subsistence increases the resort to unlawful means for obtaining it.

The receipts from customs in the United States during the fiscal year ending on the 30th of June last, amounted to $132,000,000. This is a large aggregate, but it is almost equaled by the amount of customs collected by the English Government during the year 1866. England clamors for free trade, hoping to force it upon us so that her manufacturers may break down ours; but she takes good care to levy a duty upon all foreign articles coming into her markets when it is for her interest to do so. Last year her customs receipts amounted to nearly $100,000,000, which sum was levied mainly upon articles she could not produce and which her people are compelled to have. As for manufactured goods, her revenue system, enforced rigidly for hundreds of years, has enabled her to defy competition, and as there is no longer a necessity for protection, the duty is remitted. But she lays a duty on necessaries which her own people can not produce, though constantly urging on us the advantages of free trade.

Three centuries and a half ago when Magellan made his bold push into the unexplored Pacific ocean, he was three years in making his voyage around the world. The progress made since that time is strikingly illustrated by the interesting fact, stated by a traveler, that one can now make the trip around the world, starting from New York across the continent, in the astonishingly brief period of ninety-six days. When the Pacific Railroad is completed, even this time will be considerably reduced, and the circumnavigation of the globe may become but a summer trip for the pleasure tourist. Time was when one who had traveled to the ends of the earth and returned to his native village, was looked on with wonder, and was acknowledged a hero. There are no such heroes now.

In a recent speech in Virginia Senator Wilson said that there would be no impediment to Southern representation in Congress in case they accepted the reconstruction act and elected Union men. Thaddeus Stevens has written a letter protesting against the making of such a promise and declaring anew for confiscation. All the leading Union journals of the North join in rebuking Mr. Stevens and supporting the promise of Mr. Wilson. The Union party will keep its faith with the South.

WALLA WALLA.—A letter from H. Parker, dated Walla Walla, June 5th, states that Clark's majority in that county is about 145. Also that the additional returns have changed the supposed result in the Legislative and County tickets. One Republican Representative is elected. The County Treasurer, two of the Commissioners and the School Superintendent are also Republicans.

Gloomy Predictions for England.

The English historian, Sir Archibald Alison, recently delivered an address at Glasgow in which he took a gloomy view of the future of his country. Every nation has old grudges against England which he thinks they will seize the first opportunity to pay off. All the nations of Europe have suffered wrongs at the hands of England, and he believes they will eagerly seek a chance to obtain revenge. Hence if war occurs in Europe he does not believe that England can keep out of it. The other nations will drag her in. In his discourse Sir Archibald expresses much concern about the defenceless condition of his country. The invention of iron-clads he declares has annihilated her power. He talks in this quite doleful strain:

> Our great wooden fleet, so long the pride of Britain, the terror of the world, lies stored up in Portsmouth harbor, of no earthly use in maintaining any maritime contest. Those noble three-deckers, such as the Duke of Wellington, would be sent to the bottom by a single gun carrying a 300-pound ball. We have, at one blow, virtually lost the fleet which had been growing up for two hundred years. For the construction of a new fleet of iron-clads we must wait for time and money, just as all the other Powers must do. We have lost our start in the race; we must all set off anew and abreast. This is the real secret of the vast sums voted annually for the navy, and the general complaint that we have so little to show for them. We have been laying the foundation of a fleet which can be as yet only in its infancy. Other nations are just as far on as we are. It is doubtful whether our royal navy as yet equals that of America. United to that of Russia, the latter is decidedly superior to anything we could bring forward. If a forest of hostile iron-clads appear off Spithead or Plymouth, vain will be the forty or fifty noble sail of the line lying in our harbors. Everything will depend not on the fifty old wooden line-of-battle ships, but on the eight or ten line iron clads. This great change has entirely altered our relative position in any future naval war; and unless steps are taken, and that speedily, to counterbalance its effects, it may safely be predicted that evil days are coming upon us, and that the days of our national independence are numbered.

CURE FOR COUGH OR COLD.—As soon as there is the slightest uneasiness of the Chest, with difficulty of breathing, or indications of Cough, take during the day a few of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." Containing demulcent ingredients, they allay Pulmonary Irritation. Have them in readiness upon the first appearance of a Cough or Cold.

"FAMILY DYE COLORS."—The most useful and welcome articles to be found in almost every household in the land, are the FAMILY DYE COLORS of Howe & Stevens. They can always be relied upon, are easily used, and cost but a trifle. Sold by Smith & Davis.

THE MOTHER'S REMEDY.—For all diseases with which children are afflicted, is MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It relieves the child from pain, cures wind colic, regulates the stomach and bowels, and during the process of toothing, it gives rest and health to the child, and carries it safely through the critical period. The National Grand Lodge of Good Templars has been in session at Detroit. IN THE LATTER PART OF OCTOBER, 1866, I LEFT some Household Furniture, including Cook Stove, with J. H. Feaster, at Wacoma, to be forwarded to the O. S. N. Co.'s warehouse, Portland, for shipment to Vancouver. The goods were hauled to this city by J. A. Gilmore, who, (as the clerk of the O. S. N. Co. refused to receive them because it was not the proper place of deposit for freight to Vancouver,) left them with his brother-in-law, since which time I have lost trace of them. If the brother-in-law of Mr. Gilmore, (whose name I do not know,) or any other person, can give any information of said furniture, he will greatly oblige by leaving word at the Oregonian Office.

RUMORS.—Rumors occasionally get thick—one follows another so rapidly that it makes ones head swim to see them pass. There are regular rumor epidemics which affect a whole community like the measles or influenza. They start up here, there, everywhere; nobody is able to tell precisely their origin, but everybody knows they are buzzing about, like gad flies, tickling one man's ear, stinging another's nose and raising thunder generally during the paroxysm, nobody is expected to be ignorant of the rumor, nobody is expected to know whence it came or whither it is going, nobody ever did know anything, correctly, about the details, and yet strangely enough, nobody ever failed to be able to tell more details (purely the work of imagination,) than would fill a small volume. Nobody but newspaper reporters is expected to make the least effort to unravel the tangled web of a rumor, and they are expected to find out all about it and tell all about it, as soon as the next morning at the farthest, though it may have been doubled up one street and twisted down another, retouched, re-colored, re-patched and re-bedevilled into a fresh entanglement at every street crossing. To untangle, trace back, stitch by stitch, to its origin every rumor that starts; to compute it, weigh it and tell precisely what it is worth, is the unthankful duty of a newspaper reporter; and though nobody ever did succeed in fathoming a rumor so, but that another plausible explanation might be given, everybody agrees that a reporter who can't and don't go through a dozen of them in one day, if need be, is just no reporter at all, and ought to resign. Reporters, therefore, find an indefinite, undefinable rumor, the meanest, bewitchingest, confoundedest and, as Mr. Mantalini would put it, demnitest botheration in the whole catalogue of reportorial plagues. Good Lord, deliver us from it. We've met 'em and we have no hankering after 'em.

THE PORTLAND AND TUALATIN ROAD.—What has become of the project to build a road from Portland to the Tualatin Plains? That is a question asked us occasionally, and it is one that we can't answer. The road, according to the latest news received by grape-vine, has not been made. The projectors may be waiting to get a good ready; or they may not have succeeded in getting stock taken. We are inclined to believe in the latter supposition. It is possible that the people of Portland expected the road to build itself. One would naturally draw that conclusion from the fact that after being urged for two or three months to subscribe stock, they only came up with seven or eight thousand dollars. The people of the Plains, as we learn, got disgusted with the public spirit of Portland and have gone to work to open a road to Baker's Landing and have got the scheme well under way. They say they do not want to be tied up by a road, with a place which, being most interested, could not pledge more than seven or eight thousand dollars of the fifty thousand required. We are not certain but that they have acted wisely.

THE COUNTERFEITING CASE.—The parties arrested on ...esday for counterfeiting were brought before Recorder ... ..., acting as Justice of the Peace, for examination ... afternoon. Their names are Dorville Brown, ... Hope and Mrs. Morse. The defendants not being ready for examination, the case was continued till this morning. Mitchell and Beale appeared for the defence. Bail was fixed at $3,000, but the parties not being able to raise that amount, were committed to jail. The evidence ... not one or two of the parties is rather strong. The dies by which the coin was made and some of the coin found on the premises are in possession of the Marshall and will be exhibited upon the examination. The dies are for half dollars, five dollar pieces and two-and-a-half pieces. The dies for gold coin seem to have been most used. Experts think, from the burnt appearance of the dies, that they have been used enough to cast about three or four hundred dollars. The metal used was pewter and brittenzie, and for gold, was galvanized. The coins are so light as to be easily detected, even with a perfect gold exterior.

PASSENGERS FOR PORTLAND.—The steamship Ajax sailed from San Francisco for this port at 10 A. M., on Friday, the 7th, with following list of passengers: S B Hinds and family, Rev B Marsh and family, J B Knapp and wife, Miss H Marsh, Miss Neal, Mr Harris and wife, Miss Kirk, J W Brownley, A J Bally, J L Bonestall, N Thomson, Mr Haines and wife, J Schonfield, Col Mendell, Col R S Williamson, R Leighton and wife, Robt Starke and family, G O Hubbles, P Prell, S Harris, C A Ullson, T Hegeney, J Johnson, J B Bloom, Mrs Mary Kenney and child, Mrs J Summer, Mrs Brown and two children, M Harris, Maj J E Mears, E H Mears, S Holman, J Altman, B Cahn, Commodore Watson, J S Sidney, J Kearney, J Collins and wife, Mrs M Leon, Mrs S A Blanchard and son, Miss M J Weeks, J Doe, Mr White, S E Smith, J M Hoag, C F Powell, H H Holden and daughter, G E Gates and daughter, 22 in the steerage and 90 United States troops.

MUSIC AND ART GALLERY.—Mr. W. T. Shanahan has, within a few days, removed his goods from the building, cor. of Morrison and First, to the next door South—a new and very pretty room. He is getting fitted up in his new quarters in excellent style and his store may now properly be called a "Music and Art Gallery." Besides a fine assortment of first-class musical instruments, he has probably the largest and finest assortment of engravings, cromos, plain and colored lithographs, etc., ever seen in one store on this coast. The cromo pictures in his collection are of the highest order, both as to design and finish and are really the finest pieces of the kind we have ever seen in this country. The lovers of the beautiful in art cannot fail to be highly pleased with a view of the premises, even if unable to invest in the beautiful goods on exhibition. We advise all our friends to make him a call.

THE MIXED CHILDREN AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—In the ...ter of the admission of the colored children of the city into the public schools, a mandamus was sued out some days ago, directing W. S. Ladd, Josiah Failing, Directors of school district No. 1, and O. S. Frambes, principal of the Central School, to appear before Judge Bostwick on Monday, the 10th inst., and show cause why they should not receive such colored children into the school, or why they omit to do so. David Logan is attorney for the colored parties. We are not advised as to what answer the directors will make.

FOURTH OF JULY.—The Washington Guard had a regular meeting last evening at which the company resolved to have a parade on the 4th of July. This is the first organized movement, of which we have any knowledge, for an observance in this city of our great National holiday, if we except the salute provided for by the City Council. Now, why not have a parade of the Fire Department, Turn Vereins, and the various other organizations of the city? Why will not all our citizens unite in something of this sort, and have a day to be remembered?

COUNTY COURT.—The following proceedings were had yesterday in the County Court:

Petition of Jas. B. Stephens and others for closing up and vacating the county road, across the lands of Stephens, was read second time and allowed.

Adjourned till 9 o'clock this morning.

RESIGNATIONS OF THE CITY WARDS.—As many of the voters of the city are uncertain as to where they have a right to vote, we furnish a memorandum of the boundaries of the several wards: All north of Washington street and west of the river, is included in the 1st Ward. All between Washington and Main streets and west of the river, constitutes the 2d Ward. All south of Main street and west of the river, is in the 3d Ward.

THE COLUMBIA RIVER.—The officers of the Cascade reported the Columbia river rising yesterday at the rate of over one foot in twenty-four hours. The weather having turned off warm again, the snows will be rapidly melted, and a general inundation of the Columbia bottoms may be expected. At the Cascades, yesterday, the stage of water was only one foot below that of the highest last year.

UNION WARD MEETINGS.—The meetings of the Union men of the several wards of the city, to nominate candidates for Councilmen, are called for the evening of Monday next. It is hoped that the Union voters will generally turn out and see that good men are selected. The places of voting in the several wards are announced in another column, this morning, by the Central Committee.

REV. B. TODD.—This teacher of Spiritualism is lecturing every Sunday at Oro Fino Hall. We are requested to say that on next Sunday evening, he will review the several articles on Spiritualism, which have appeared in the Christian Advocate, and he hopes the writer of the articles will be present. His efforts to get a public doctrinal controversy have thus far proved unsuccessful.

MACHINERY FOR THE UPPER COUNTRY.—Of late there have been several shipments of farm machinery for Walla Walla and the valleys of Eastern Oregon and Idaho. This looks as though the farming interests of that country are becoming of considerable moment. The flour coming from Walla Walla looks that way, too.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.—Friday, June 7th: James Fields vs. J. F. O. Lownsdale et. al; motion for defendants to show cause why they should not be required to file copies of process against them at this term of court (argued and submitted Thursday;) overruled.

WESTWARD BOUNDING.—The Senator arrived from Oregon City yesterday with the following freight list:—1,780 qr sks flour, 4 bales blankets, 720 bags feed, 90 bags wheat, 1 box, 102 pkgs paper, lot of flooring and a lot of box lumber.

TREASURE SHIPMENT.—The treasure shipped to San Francisco per steamer Orizaba, was $103,000. Of that amount, Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped $100,000, and Goldsmith Bros., $3,000. This is the largest shipment made for several months.

CAPT. R. S. WILLIAMSON.—Col. Williamson is passenger by the steamer Ajax, and it is understood that he comes on business connected with the improvement of the river channel at Swan Island bar and at the mouth of the river.

Consumption like the Rattle Snake, always gives warning of its approach. A hacking cough, dull pain in the chest, difficulty of breathing, are the indications that there is more or less irritation of the lungs. If this be neglected, and go on until pustules are formed, followed by tubercles, which sometimes eat off the blood vessels, death will be the result. Allen's Lung Balsam will heal the irritated parts, allay the inflammation, removing the phlegm and matter, thus stopping the cough, and preventing fatal consumption. PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER, after a thorough trial, by innumerable living witnesses, has proved itself the MEDICINE OF THE AGE. Although there have been many medicinal preparations brought before the public since the first introduction of Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer, and large amounts expended in their introduction, the Pain Killer has continued to steadily advance in the estimation of the world as the best Family Medicine ever introduced. It is an internal and external remedy. One positive proof of its efficacy is, that the sales have constantly increased, and wholly upon its own merits. The effect of the Pain Killer upon the patient, when taken internally in case of Cold, Cough, Bowel Complaints, Cholera, Dysentery, and other affections of the system, has been truly wonderful, and has won for it a name among medical preparations that can never be forgotten. Its success in removing pain, as an external remedy in case of Burns, Bruises, Sores, Sprains, Cuts, Sting of Insects, and other causes of suffering, has secured for it such a host of testimony, as an almost infallible remedy, that it will be handed down to posterity as one of the greatest medical discoveries of the nineteenth century.

The Legislature of North Carolina has passed a law punishing horse stealing with death. This is going backward with a vengeance.

Washington Lyon hung himself at Munson, Mass., on Tuesday. He was about thirty-five years old. His father committed suicide about ten years ago.

A corpse recently found in the Court House at Rochester, N. Y., is supposed to be that of Louis Fox, the billiard player, who has been missing for some time.

There are one hundred people in the healthy town of Wilmington, Delaware, over seventy-five years of age, and two colored people over a hundred and two.

A New York paper says that the new Constitution of that State will probably contain a clause providing that no legislation shall be allowed regarding what any one eats or drinks.

The boot and shoe sales at Lynn, Mass., for the last quarter, were $2,663,340, and in March they reached $1,225,454, a larger business than was ever done before in a single month.

A St. Louis divine in writing to show that all the wood on this continent will be destroyed in 150 years, or say in 2017—a serious fact for our grandchildren's great grandchildren.

A Western paper strikes the names of two subscribers from its list because they were hung. The publisher says he was compelled to be severe, because he did not know their present address.

A gentleman in Iowa advertises for a wife "who wears her own hair, her own teeth, her own cheeks her own 'buzzum,' and her own calves, without having went and gone and paid for them." He'll do.

The Hebrew National, a new Jewish weekly published in London, complains that the last edition of Webster's Dictionary contains the verb "to jew," in the sense of "to cheat," "to swindle," etc.

If small shavings of camphor are thrown on the surface of perfectly clean water, in a large basin, the pieces immediately begin to move rapidly, some around on their centers, others from place to place. The cause of these motions is unknown.

In Portland, Maine, a workman engaged in blasting rocks peeped round the corner of the Casco Bank building, to see if a charge was going off, and received a mouthful of stones by way of information. The principal damage was to his teeth.

The Macon Telegraph announces the arrival in that city of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, and hopes that her sojourn in the South has been a pleasant one, and that she finds the morals of the Southern people much improved since she wrote Uncle Tom's Cabin.

The store of A. T. Stewart, on Broadway, corner of Tenth street, New York, is to be enlarged during the coming summer. The present structure is to be multiplied six times in size, and the new building will cover an acre and a quarter of ground.

When the State constables called at a saloon in Westfield, Mass., some time since, the proprietor slipped the chain from a large black bear which he keeps and retired to an ante-room to await results. The officers opened the door, and the bear courteously advanced to give them a friendly embrace, which they declined, and have not been seen in that locality since.

Romance is not over yet. The most notorious robber in Croatia, named Udmanics, was shot after a desperate fight with five gendarmes, who had surrounded and set fire to a house in which he had taken refuge. He leaped from the flames killed one gendarme, wounded another, had broken a third to the ground, and stopped for a moment to dispatch him too, when the wounded gendarme shot him.

Eighteen young ladies who, five years ago, organized at Milford, Conn., what they called a "Dorcas Association," whose meetings should continue five years, at which each member should relate the most prominent events in her life and their first reunion recently, did the promised "owning up" and drank one another's health in a bottle of wine which had been sealed at the society's organization. Two of the number had died and five married since their organization.

Of Hon. Daniel D. Barnes, of Weston, Mo., who died on the 14th inst., it is stated that since his wife's death he would often be on her grave all night, claiming that he longed to be buried with her. At one time to time he stated that he would die within a year of her death, and within a day or two of that he set his word proved true. He was formerly a representative in the General Assembly and many offices of honor and trust, and as a man was esteemed by all who knew him.

A Richmond correspondent of the Tribune writes that all the efforts of the Conservatives cannot induce the Freedmen any expression of their purpose in the matter of voting, seem to be unavailing. Not an intimation has so far been won out by any number of them, that would furnish even a clue as to how they shall vote. They certainly keep their own secrets, and are equally silent on the question of how they shall vote when comes the day of election.

At Fort Canada, on the 18th ult., a woman, while in the basement of a flour mill, was caught by her hair in the moving wheels, and had one arm torn from the shoulder, one leg nearly torn off, a hand nearly mangled and her body much mutilated. The first intimation of the accident that the miller had was the cracking of her bones among the cogs. She continued revolving with the wheels and uttering agonizing screams, until he ran up stairs ascended a flight of stairs to the next floor and stopped the machinery.

The monument to the dead soldiers of Concord, Mass., was dedicated on Friday, the 22d anniversary of the battle of Lexington. A large concourse of people was present from the surrounding towns and Ralph Waldo Emerson delivered one of his remarkable and unreportable addresses, and F. B. Sanborn read a poem. The monument is of Concord granite, in the form of an obelisk, and is 40 feet 6 inches high, with bronze tablets bearing the names of the fallen soldiers and appropriate inscriptions.

It is now remembered as a probable explanation of the skeleton dug up in a blacksmith's shop at Jacksonville, Mass., a short time since, that forty or fifty years ago a Belchertown man named Hannibal, who had been to Hartford to sell some wagons, mysteriously disappeared, and the horse which he rode was found near Ludlow City. On his return he crossed the Chicopee river, and it is supposed that he stopped to have a horse shoe set, and having no money, never left the shop. The most diligent search was made, and at one time as many as three thousand people engaged in it, but no clue to his fate has ever been obtained till now.

Claims of the Hudson's Bay Company.—A Washington dispatch says: "The Commission organized under treaty of 1863, for the final settlement of the Hudson's Bay and Puget's Sound Agricultural Companies against the United States will soon have all the evidence before them. Alexander S. Johnson is the Commissioner on the part of the United States; John Rose is the Commissioner on the part of Great Britain, and Benjamin R. Curtis is the umpire; Judge C. D. Day of Montreal, and Judge Edward Lander, (a brother of the lamented General Lander,) are the counsel for Great Britian, and have finished taking evidence in support of their claims. Gen. Cushing, who has for some months past been assisted by C. C. Beaman, formerly of Boston, has taken a great amount of evidence in behalf of the United States, and some few witnesses remain to be examined. The object of the examination of witnesses is to show what was the value of certain buildings and posts of the two Companies on the territory south of the 49th parallel of north latitude, which came under the jurisdiction of the United States in 1846. Admiral Wilkes, who visited this region in 1841 and 1842, the various officers of the Northwest Boundary Commission and the officers of the Pacific Railroad Surveys, have contributed their knowledge, and it has been the aim of the counsel of the United States to bring before the Commissioners everything which can help them to form a correct judgment in the case. Mr. Mactavish, who for a long time has been connected with the Hudson Bay Company's service, and who is at present the chief factor of the Company, has just been examined here—his cross-examination occupying a month. The entire evidence will make two thousand printed pages, and is somewhat conflicting, which will make the task of the Commissioners a difficult one, and the final awards may have to be made by Judge Curtis as umpire.

Ways and Means.—The only grocer in Hastings, Michigan, that persists in the selling of intoxicating beverages, has fixed a sort of wheel lettered with the initials of the liquor desired, as B for brandy, W for whisky, and so on ad infinitum. The drinker places his tumbler upon the letter of the drink he desires—not forgetting to place the money there also—then turns the wheel. It goes behind a screen, is filled, rolls on its journey round to the drinker, and no one is seen to sell, or take pay, and thus the law is evaded.

Homeric Culture—A Plea for the Study of Classics.

The criticisms of "A Gothic Man," in recent numbers of The Nation, on the present prominence accorded to the classical studies, have prompted a few suggestions which may not appear wholly unimportant, now that so much is written on the subject.

It is common to hear arguments running very much in this wise: that the intense study of Latin and Greek hitherto believed in is a mediæval and antiquated notion; that these languages are no longer serviceable, and the many years spent in acquiring them very nearly wasted, that at best but a superficial knowledge of them is obtained, and is of no practical utility. And it is very generally believed that we have outgrown our old-fashioned veneration for these pursuits, and will soon make them give place to science and the modern languages.

It is true that more time must be given to the classics, by a boy intending a liberal education, than to any other study. And it is also undeniable that while years are devoted to the study of Latin grammar and construction, hardly ever relished and often especially irksome, three months' drilling in natural history leaves a boy no mean botanist, ornithologist, or expert in that department he may particularly fancy. In vacations he goes chipping about the rocks, or ransacks the woods and fields for birds and insects. The results of every step of his progress are apparent to himself, and he develops an enthusiasm that has lain dormant while pursuing Latin and Greek. His friends observe the change, and from it draw sweeping conclusions.

Again, in New England we constantly come in contact with shrewd—to use our own expressive adjective—long-headed men, who laid up a well-thumbed spelling-book and Third Part on the upper shelf, thirty or forty years ago, and began to seek their fortunes. They have very generally succeeded in life, and their opinion, as that of men of large and valuable experience, is entitled to consideration. They have skill in wood-craft, and are shrewd and practical in agriculture; have certain homely knowledge of geology, and untortured but very often striking ideas of natural phenomena. And the results of their observation are especially fascinating, not because they are remarkably original, but because, as Hawthorne says, they have thought them out for themselves, and they have the flavor of the fresh earth upon them. These men very generally oppose a classical education, for various reasons, all more or less directly based on the facility with which they have made their way in the world, intelligently and enjoyably, without it. But their knowledge is commonly general rather than exact, and that they have half learnt a great many truths. But everything will bear improvement, and mother wit, if deepened and widened by the shrewd and practical words of writers of ages infinitely more thoughtful and cultivated than ours, will be rendered less efficient.

The reformed classicists ring the changes on the superficial character of Greek attainments, and the all satisfying completeness of modern thought, so persistently that it prompts a suspicion that they have possibly not worked hard enough over the classics to fully appreciate the enjoyment they can confer. Thorough work seldom fails to discover some excellence in whatever it undertakes, and wholesale underrating of certain subjects by people supposed to know something of them is not esteemed a sign of careful study, when the abused topics have stood the test of time better than any others in the world.

It is said that the use of pure and graceful English can be as well obtained from Shakespeare and Chaucer as by translating old authors. But very few young people care for Shakespeare, or are industrious enough to study Chaucer for philosophical purposes. But if they would, there never was a period in the existence of our language when deep and thorough study of the simple and perfect style of Greek writings was so needed as now. For it has been a rule for many years to present an idea in as many different forms as possible, when it would have been better expressed in a single sentence. This fashion has been dazzling to the fancy, and has contributed to a ready command of language. But of late it has become plain that the public are becoming tired of amplifications, and desire a return to severe simplicity of writing. And as a guide to this result, Greek is unrivaled. Reference has been made to a boy's more rapid progress in science than in the languages. But let us glance at his advancement a few years later. No doubt he is still interested in scientific pursuits, and may intend to devote his life to the study of some department of science. But he takes wise and thoughtful notice of the world, and his sympathies have been strengthened and cultivated by the strong and pure words of ancient works. The simplest and noblest thoughts of unimpired text have had their influence on his character. His literary taste has been formed on something more than modern literature, and in consequence is more or less severe and exact. He emerges from a very wide and well trodden field when he enters active life; a field which has taught him the world, with its theories and scepticisms, if it has not learned him science.

In concluding these crudely offered but well intended suggestions, the writer can but reiterate what alone prompted their being offered at all—an earnest hope that now, when we most need its teachings, Greek, the most invaluable of all written languages, and the perfect exponent of the most polished thoughts in the world, will not be given up as useless and harmful. It is no time to do away with its patient and well considered processes and its strong and simple words, at a time when from all sides the complaint rises that our national character is becoming to the last degree superficial.

The Heartlessness of the Prince of Wales.—The present Prince of Wales is but following in the footsteps of his illustrious predecessors, and he offers a very striking illustration of the homely but truthful asseveration that "blood will tell." The Guelph family have been consistently brutal in the treatment of their own families ever since the first George left his loved Duchy to assume the crown of Britain. That worthy German gentleman began his domestic tyranny by imprisoning his wife Sophia, upon a trumped up charge of infidelity, after completely alienating whatever affection she might have had for him, by his brutality and open unfaithfulness. Once rid of her, he filled her place with the hideous and degraded Duchess of Kendal, with whom he lived, unmarried, for years.

George the Second, hated by his father, possessed the same brutal instincts, and although he dared not treat Caroline, who was his intellectual superior, as his father had done his wife, he was guilty of the grossest infidelity, and of cold-blooded brutality, even while his wife lay gasping for breath upon her death-bed. George the Third, the best of the four, was the bitter enemy of his own son, as his predecessors had been of theirs. George the Fourth was married to Mrs. Fitzherbert, before he became nominally the husband of Caroline of Brunswick. In addition to the other crimes which blackened the character of this famous "gentleman," he committed that of bigamy, and then, following the example of the first George, he accused Caroline of infidelity, separated from her, persecuted her in the most heartless and relentless manner, and then crowned his villainy by charging her with adultery in the House of Lords. She was tried and acquitted, after three weeks of agonizing suspense, but she was so overcome by shame and chagrin that she died within a year.

Such were the predecessors of the young man who is now amusing himself in London while his wife is dying. And while every honest man must despise him as a heartless wretch, something must be pardoned to his hereditary taint of brutality and insanity. It is very certain, however, that his conduct upon the present occasion will serve to render him more unpopular with the English people than he has been, and in the advanced state of liberal sentiment, he may find his throne uncomfortable and insecure when he succeeds to it.

While on a visit to Carson, the other day, we took occasion to visit the site on which the United States Mint is being erected, and were astonished at the rapid progress being made in its construction. The basement is already completed, and the first story is erected about six feet high. The second story will be commenced about the first of the ensuing month, and the whole building will be completed about the first of October. The whole building will be completed at a cost not exceeding the limit of $100,000, which was appropriated by Congress. From the Superintendent of Construction, Colonel Curry, we gained the information that he could give no precise date that the Mint would be ready for the coinage of Washoe bullion, but that Mr. Eckfeldt, the Consulting Engineer, about a week ago departed, after making an examination of the work, for the purpose of ordering the necessary machinery. Colonel Curry said that it would take about four months to manufacture the machinery in the East, and it would take about six months to reach Carson after shipment. He lives in expectation of seeing money coined in his pet superstructure within a year, and swears he will capture the first piece of coinage. The Mint will, when finished, be a most substantial structure, and will be an ornament to the town of Carson. It is built of fine sand stone, and will be fire-proof throughout.

The First Discovery of Gold in California

James W. Marshall emigrated from New Jersey to Oregon in 1843, and from Oregon to California in 1844. Here he engaged in farming and stock-raising in a small way until the breaking out of the Mexican war, when he enlisted in the California battalion under Fremont, served faithfully throughout his term of enlistment, and received an honorable discharge. Returning home, Marshall found his cattle and horses gone—some strayed and others stolen—and in order to obtain means to buy other stock and set his place to rights, he applied to Capt. Sutter for work. Marshall was then about thirty-eight years of age, unmarried, faithful, eccentric, and exceedingly stubborn. He obtained immediate employment from Capt. Sutter, and proved an ingenious mechanic, making himself quite useful in the construction of chairs, tables, and all those articles of household furniture so much needed in a new settlement.

Lumber was in great demand among the settlers of the Sacramento Valley, their numbers having been considerably augmented by the arrival of Mormons and others from over the mountains. Marshall being a good judge of the article, and otherwise competent to manage the enterprise, he was dispatched by Sutter, with an Indian guide and interpreter, May, 1847, to the mountains to select a site for a sawmill. Marshall returned and reported that he had found a good location on the south fork of the American River, forty miles east of the fort, and at a point called by the Indians Culloo-ma, now called Coloma. The water power was good, pine trees plenty, and a Mexican cart could pass without difficulty between the proposed site of the saw-mill and the fort. Some delay occured, and it was not until August, 1847, that Sutter finally arranged with Marshall to superintend the erection and running of the saw-mill.

The saw-mill was completed in January, 1848, and they had just commenced sawing lumber, when, on the night of Feb. 2d, 1848, Marshall appeared at Sutter's Fort, his horse in a foam, and himself presenting a singular appearance—all bespattered with mud, and laboring under an extraordinary degree of excitement. He immediately requested Capt. Sutter to go with him into a room where they would be alone. This request was granted, and after the door was closed, Marshall asked Capt. Sutter if he was sure they would not be disturbed, and desired that the door might be locked. Capt. Sutter did not know what to make of his actions, and he began to think it hazardous to look himself in the room with Marshall, who appeared so uncommonly strange.

Marshall being satisfied at last that they would not be interrupted, took from his pocket a pouch from which he poured upon the table about an ounce of yellow grains of metal, which he thought would prove to be gold. Capt. Sutter inquired where he got it. Marshall stated that in the morning, the water being shut off from the saw-mill race, as was customary, he discovered in passing through the race, shining particles here and there on the bottom. On examination he found them to be of metallic substance, and the thought flashed over him that they might be gold.

Marshall stated that the laborers—white and Indian—had picked up some of the particles, and he thought a large quantity could be collected.

Sutter was at first quite incredulous as to these particles being gold, but happening to have a bottle of nitric acid among his stores, he applied the test, and true enough, the yellow grain proved to be pure gold. The great discovery was made.

It must not be forgotten that another scene in this unimpotent drama was being enacted in the Mexican Capital. On the very day, perhaps the very moment that Marshall discovered the grains of gold in Sutter's mill-race, the treaty that closed the Mexican War and gave us California, was signed in the City of Mexico!—E. E. Dunbar's Romances of the Age.

A Speech.—A Washington correspondent says that those who have been painfully fortunate enough to see a prize fight can realise Mr. John Morrissey's feelings when he took the oath as a member of Congress: "I tuk off my coat," he said, "many a time afore now, to fight, and—give you my word!—I never shuck so as I did then. It was orful, that was it."

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

WEEKLY REVIEW.

Portland, Friday, 2 P. M., June 7, 1867.

Gold closed in New York Tuesday, at 137. Legal Tenders in San Francisco, yesterday, were quiet at 73½@ buying and 74c selling. The money market still remains tight, though we hear less complaint this week than last.

In most departments of trade, we note an evident improvement and merchants are beginning to entertain a more hopeful view of the season's business. There are indications that the opening of a fair trade with the great mining country of the interior will not be much longer delayed.

The transactions in flour and wheat for the week have been above the average. Most of the lots arriving here were to fill orders from San Francisco. The shipment of flour per Oriflamme, 16,522 qr sks, was nearly all sold in San Francisco, to arrive. Quotations remain as last week, and sales are daily effected at San Francisco at the same figures as heretofore, notwithstanding the decline of 25c per bbl. in the leading San Francisco brands.

Hardware is quiet, without change in quotations.

Bacon—sides and hams—still further decline in buying prices. Jobbers say that it will go still lower. Lard is also dull.

Groceries—trade upon the whole fair, with prospects of immediate improvement. The past week has been the liveliest of the season. Sandwich Island sugar is scarce. Syrups steady, without change.

Weekly Retail Family Market.

Portland, June 7, 1867.

Business moderate. The cold rains of the past week have retarded the arrival of berries and cherries. A few days sunshine will fill the market to overflowing, and it is hoped at prices to suit the dull times. Butter still tends down. Eggs are firmer. Flour is weak. Poultry is in moderate demand. Game is scarce and high. Spring chickens are in active demand and prices are up. Vegetables are scarce and high, supplies of all kinds, including potatoes and onions, now spring crop, are now being received from California by each steamer.

Cotton Goods and Woolen Market.

Portland, June 7, 1867.

Trade in domestic woolen goods is very dull, the market being still over full. The reduction in prices has had no perceptible effect upon sales. There is nothing in eastern advices to lend encouragement. Up to the 1st inst., trade in New York was reported dull, with prices favoring the buyer.

Cotton goods have a downward tendency in prices; but the sales for the week have been fair.
